

Copyright, Terms & Conditions

This web page is owned and maintained by DAMPA ApS, DK-5690 Tommerup, a Danish company based in Denmark, for the reason of providing information about DAMPA and their products.

When you open, browse through or in any other way use material found in this web-site, including downloading software it is your obligation to take the necessary precautions to ensure that the material does not contain any form of virus that will damage your computer. You must also check the compatibility of downloadable software with your installed software.

Though DAMPA has taken great care to ensure that the material on this web page is complete, correct and updated we can not guarantee total accuracy. You should not undertake any business, or desist from undertaking any business based on the material found on this web page, but contact DAMPA ApS. We will then make sure you receive the correct information or advice.

The material belongs to DAMPA or others. Reproduction or use of the material or part of the material in any form is prohibited, except for personal non-commercial use. No licence has been given to reproduce or use the material for any thing other than ordinary web-browsing.

If you reproduce the material for personal non-commercial use, you must refer to DAMPA as your source by referring to this web page (www.dampa.com) and state our copyright "© 2015 DAMPA".

Text, photos, film, drawings, graphics, sound, data etc. may be subject to copyright and either belongs to, or is licensed by DAMPA. Trademarks incl. logos, slogans etc. whether registered or non-registered trademarks are either owned or licensed to DAMPA.

The products and production methods described on this web page may be subject to intellectual property protection and under subject to patent, or design protection and belongs to, or is licensed to DAMPA. No license has been issued to use any of these intellectual property rights and we wish to inform you that DAMPA closely monitors and legally pursues violations of these rights.

DAMPA register non-personal information about the visiting audience of this web page for the reason of updating and developing the web page. Personal information will only be registered upon personal acceptance from the visitor. The information will only include information such as name, address, phone number; fax number and e-mail address and will only be used in relation to the specific purpose to which it was given. Personal as well as non-personal information registered by DAMPA will be treated as confidential and will not be handed over or in any other way be made accessible to others.

Any material, which DAMPA receives through this web page, is looked upon as common availability. In this way DAMPA is entitled to reproduce, use, change and hand over such material without any restriction, including ideas for products or production methods and know how, which may be included in such material.

If you use a link on this web page to open another web page, you will leave this web page. The web page you open will be independent of this web page and DAMPA will have no influence on its contents.

By offering the possibility to link from this web page to another web page, we do not take the responsibility for the material on the web page, which opens by using the link. DAMPA do not accept any responsibility for direct, or in-direct loss as a result of you opening or browsing other web pages, or the use of materials which are included on the page, no matter the reason for such a loss and no matter whether DAMPA could, or should have foreseen such a loss, including the risk for such a loss by not removing the link from this web page.

When the possibility to link to this web page is given from other web pages, DAMPA have – unless it is clearly stated – not approved, the link or the material which is included on the other web page. DAMPA is not connected or have in any other way co-operated with the owner of such a web page.

DAMPA

December 2015